Care to Work

Why we created it

Care leavers are more than twice as likely to be out of work, education or training.

Your council has a duty to prepare these young people for adult life. It is also one of the largest employers in your area. Those two facts rarely meet.

Care to Work joins them: work experience in your teams and with local employers, and jobs inside your own council first. The gap is not ambition. It is a first chance, and an adult at work who understands where a young person has come from.

That's why we created Care to Work.

Care to Work

The gap

40%

of care leavers aged 19 to 21 in England are not in education, employment or training.

15%

is the estimate for all young people the same age.

Source: Department for Education, Children looked after in England including adoptions, reporting year 2025 (year ending 31 March 2025). The 15% comes from the Labour Force Survey.

What it is

An 11-month employment programme that starts inside your council. We train the people around young people first, then open work experience and real jobs. We support your council and community to offer jobs to care leavers.

A shared set-up

Three design labs with your young people, months 1 to 3

Your own brand

Named and signed off by your young people

Work experience

10 or more placements for 16 to 18 year olds

Apprenticeships and jobs

Five or more roles for 18 to 25 year olds

Two toolkits

For mentors and managers, with online modules

Support that lasts

Three months after a placement, 90 days in a job

Who this programme is for

For	Councils, as corporate parents and as large local employers
Young people	Care experienced, aged 16 to 18 for work experience and 18 to 25 for apprenticeships and jobs
Trained first	Personal advisers (PAs), mentors and hiring managers
Led by	A named project lead and executive sponsor in your council

What it sets out to do

Care leavers become your colleagues.

Three objectives, for every council we work with. Everyone who supports a young person is trained first, so the placement or the job works for them from day one.

Opportunities

Real first chances, starting with your council

One or two day placements in your teams and with local employers, each with a trained mentor.

Apprenticeships and jobs in your own council first, each with a trained manager.

A menu of opportunities young people choose from with their PA.

Support

The adults around them, trained before day one

PAs, mentors and hiring managers trained before any young person starts.

Our Getting the Job session before young people apply for roles.

Three months of support after a placement, and 90 days in a new job.

Legacy

A programme your council owns

A brand named by your young people, and a communications plan.

Two toolkits and trained staff, so your teams can run the next cohort.

A final report on what worked, and what to do next.

What young people get

A first chance they chose, and a CV with something on it

A trained mentor or manager on the other side of it

Their own PA alongside them at every step

A job built around what young people told us they need

A route on to The Care Leaders Fellowship

How the programme works, in three steps.

Every council has its own services, employers and young people, so we don't sell an off-the-shelf scheme. Every option runs for 11 months and starts with the same set-up, built with your young people.

We set it up together

Months 1 to 3. Three design labs with your young people: what good support looks like, a name and brand they choose, and sign-off. We build your communications plan and governance alongside them.

You choose one strand or both

Strand 1: work experience for 16 to 18 year olds, 10 or more placements. Strand 2: apprenticeships and jobs for 18 to 25 year olds, five or more roles. Each has its own simple route.

We prepare the hosts, then go live

Mentors, managers and PAs are trained first. Then a six-week campaign calls care leavers to apply, and we match and support every young person.

Shared by both strands Strand 1: work experience Strand 2: apprenticeships and jobs

Both strands, side by side. One set-up, one campaign and one final report. A young person can go from work experience at 17 to a job at 18, with the same PA.

One set-up, then one strand or both.

The timeline

Eleven months to handover.

Each strand runs its own route on the same 11-month clock, so shared moments like the set-up and the final report happen once. Exact dates are agreed with you at the start.

Month 3
Brand signed off. Pledges in and roles agreed.

Month 5
Mentors and managers trained. Roles approved.

Month 8
Placements begin and care leavers start work.

Month 11
Final report presented in person, and handover.

Strand 2 keeps to time if your directors agree the roles by month 3 and HR approves them by month 5. Council recruitment and checks take months, so they start early.

Every mentor and manager trained before day one.

Hosts learn our Access to Opportunity framework: apply, meet your mentor or manager, then start. Their toolkit stays with them online, so the next mentor or manager in your council can learn it too.

What hosts get

Access to Opportunity
Our three-step framework for every host.

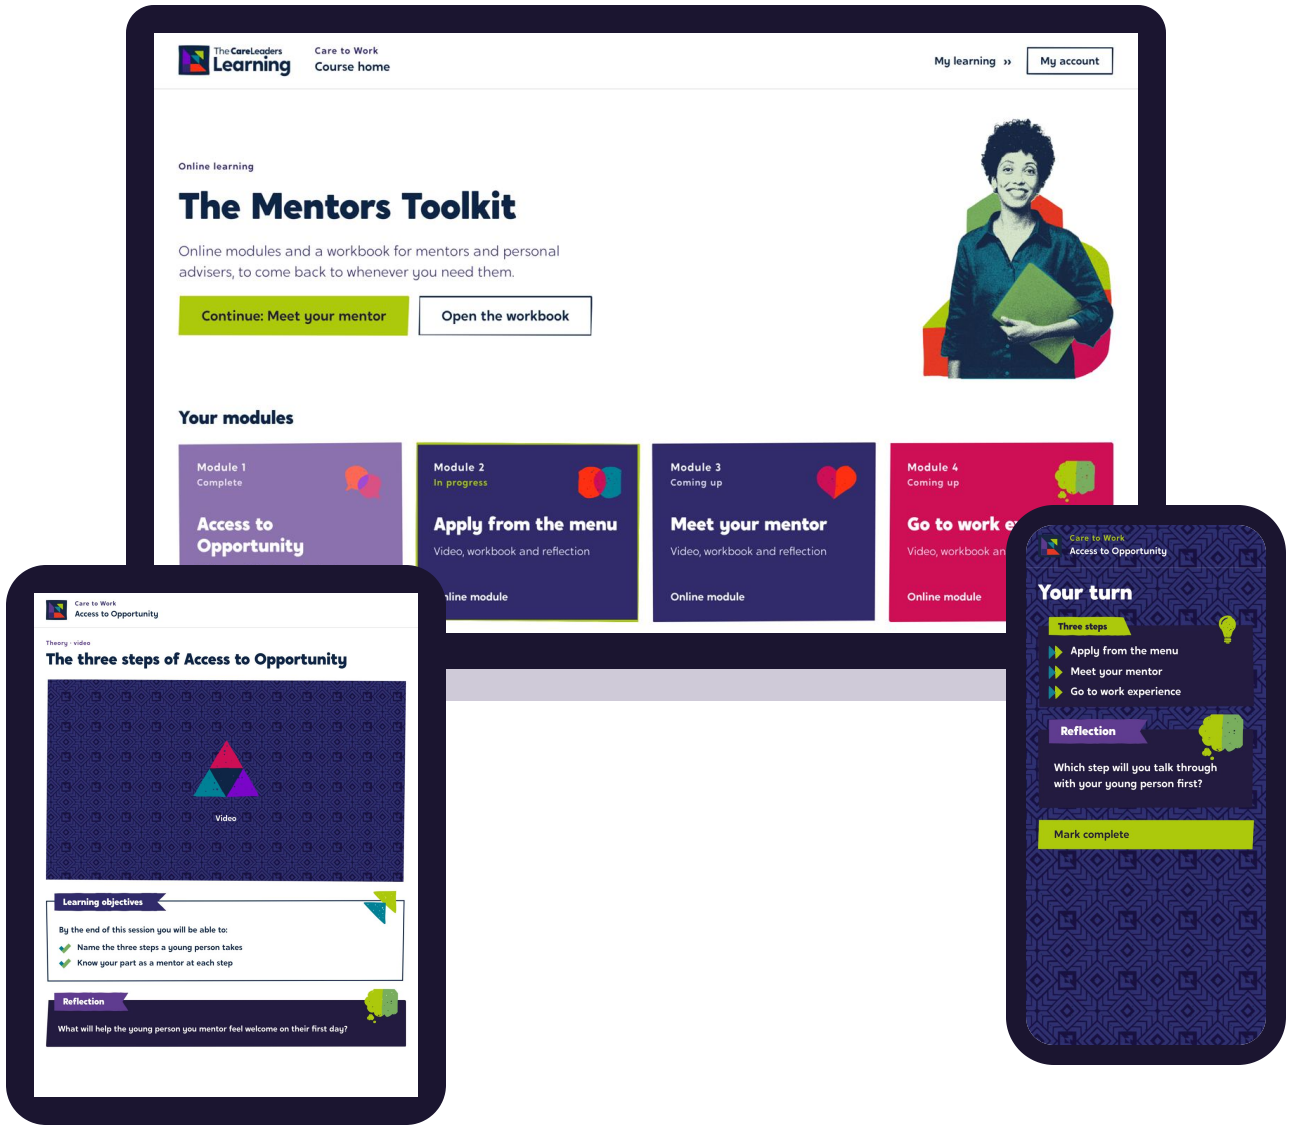

The Mentors Toolkit

The Managers Toolkit

What changes

Care leavers in work, starting with your council.

01 For young people. A first chance they chose, and a CV with something on it. Then a job designed around what they told us they need, with a trained adult on the other side of it.

02 For mentors and managers. Hosts across your council and your area who know what care experience means, and how to host and hire well.

03 For your council. Corporate parenting you can count, a brand and toolkits you reuse every year, and evidence that came from young people.

Case study

Suffolk County Council

Suffolk County Council

November 2022 to October 2024. Programme design, co-design, coaching and film.

60+ people at the employer launch

5 ring-fenced council apprenticeships agreed in the first year

6 care leavers in council apprenticeships, 4 completed or on track

Up to 40 young people gained qualifications through the Skills Academy

From corporate parenting to community parenting.

Care leavers in Suffolk had a corporate parent in the council, but not many of the things a parent gives you: a first job, a contact who knows someone, a place to learn how work works. The council wanted to change that from the inside, starting with its own jobs. Care to Work is built on what we learned there.

Listen

A two-day stakeholder review across seven groups, from care leavers to managers and HR. Goodwill everywhere, routes into work almost nowhere.

Design

A six-phase programme: a brand co-designed with young people, a comms strategy, induction and supervisor training, and a project board.

Open doors

An Innovation Board of local business owners and an employer event. Placements went live in Waste, Fire and Rescue, and Home First.

Keep it going

Coaching, apprentice onboarding and sustainability planning, then films with care leavers telling their own stories.

What changed

The employer launch drew over 60 people, and the council's own report recorded "an overwhelming number of opportunities" for young people. The NHS offered a six-week course for 30 care experienced people.

pwc

Also: PwC. In September 2024, 30 care leavers from Kent, West Sussex, East Sussex and Suffolk spent a day at PwC's London office, through our councils and networks.

In their words

They have supported us to create a sustainable programme which offers ring-fenced work opportunities, including apprenticeships to our care leavers, every year.

Luke Rodgers BEM
Founder and CEO, The Care Leaders

Your facilitator

From care leaver to care leader.

Luke went into care at 10. At 15 he was living in a bed and breakfast, and at 18 in a caravan. He gave his first keynote at 19 and has spent his career since inside children's services, as a consultant, trainer, board member and national engagement lead.

He has built routes into work with councils and employers. With Suffolk County Council he designed a programme that gave care leavers council work experience and ring-fenced apprenticeships, with placements in Waste, Fire and Rescue and Home First, and an employer launch that drew over 60 people.

He worked with PwC to open its New World, New Skills days to care leavers, and leads The Care Leaders' employment and pathways work with councils.

He founded The Care Leaders in 2017, and it has since worked with 36 local authorities and national bodies, including the Department for Education and the NHS. He knows what an employer needs before they say yes, and what a young person needs to stay in work once they start.

A campaign your young people put their name to.

Through the set-up and the campaign, we give your council everything it needs to reach care leavers, hosts and employers, under a brand your young people choose.

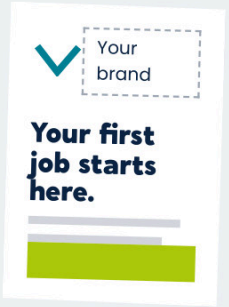

How we help young people apply and take part

- Every PA names a care leaver at the start, so the programme starts with real young people.
- Your young people name the brand, so the campaign sounds like them.
- A six-week campaign calls care leavers to apply, through their PAs.
- Young people choose from the menu of opportunities with their PA.
- Our Getting the Job session helps them apply for roles, with ID ready.
